WE ARE BULLDOGS

Use of new branding slogan designed to instill pride, unity in schools

“WE ARE?” ... “BULLDOGS”
Boys’ Basketball Head Coach Todd Messer grabbed the microphone Tuesday and in front of the entire Clinton County student body, he shouted out “WE ARE?” and the student body responded with, “BULLDOGS!”
Pride ... It is what newly hired Superintendent Charlotte Bernard wants to instill in the students in Clinton County.
“I was amazed that we had brought all our students and faculty to one location. It was such a good message that Todd (Messer) and Mike (Beard) and myself had to share ... ‘You know WE ARE BULLDOGS and we are united together,’” Bernard said. “We want to be the best if we are in the classroom or if we are out playing sports ... We are just trying to instill in our kids to have pride in themselves, have pride in Clinton County and have pride when they are representing Clinton County schools.”
Clinton County students of all ages, district-wide, met Tuesday at the high school for an assembly and it was set up as a “pep rally” gathering only it wasn’t all about sports or support for a team before a particular game.

It was a rally for academics and unity. Coming together as a school community in order to excel toward a particular goal ... uniting the similar characteristics of students, all the faculty and staff ... it was about getting on the same page by combining support.
“The assembly was a terrific success because of the buy-in and participation of our students district-wide. The sea of blue and white coupled with the excitement in the air, made The Castle a special place to be,” Head Coach Todd Messer said.
As students piled into Lindle Castle Gymnasium, a sea of blue overwhelmed the seats. Every athlete involved in high school sports was on the gym floor, in uniforms, cheering on the crowd ... but the rally wasn’t all about sports.
“We had members of the academic team to speak and tell why they are a Bulldog,” Bernard said. “If you heard any of them, many of them gave credit to God for His support in their lives and they talked about being the best at what they do.”

Bernard said she first took the idea of getting

During an assembly last week, several members of the Clinton County High School basketball team, shown in the top photo at right, displayed their school spirit by painting their bodies with the word “Bulldogs” on their chests. In the bottom photo, the entire Clinton County School District was on hand Tuesday at the Clinton County High School for an assembly to bring all students and faculty together to show school spirit and to get the start of school off on a good footing.

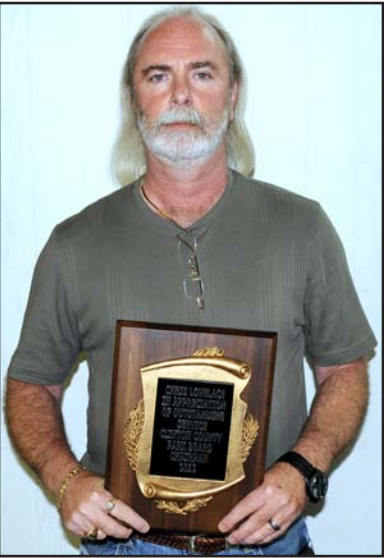

Mountain View Rec Park

Board fails again to produce a quorum for meeting

The ongoing problem of not having enough members present to constitute an official meeting continued to plague the Clinton County Rec/Park Board last Thursday night for its scheduled regular meeting.
On a night that Park Director Bobby Reneau and other board members had set aside for a meal to honor outgoing Chairman Chris Lovelace, only five members, including Lovelace, were present.
Also at the unofficial meeting was Treasurer Vince Ostertag and board members Leland Hicks, Paula Little and Carol Parrigin, along with Reneau.
Although no official action could be voted on, general discussion was held on some issues, including the need for additional members who would attend meetings.
Following discussion, Lovelace officially turned in his resignation, something he had in-

Long-time rec park chairman Lovelace resigns, looks back on 15-year tenure on board

Chris Lovelace was presented with this plaque at a recent appreciation dinner in his honor.

Over the past decade and a half, Mountain View Park has become one of the greatest assets and definitely one of the most used facilities in Clinton County. When thinking of vast improvement of the park over that time, the name Chris Lovelace is almost synonymous with Mountain View Park as we know it today.
Lovelace, an original member of the Clinton County Rec/Park Board when formed about 15 years ago, is no longer on that board due to time restraints, job and family. He officially resigned from the position last Thursday, August 30.
Not only was Lovelace an original member of the board, for the past approximate 14 years he has served as its chairman...and also put in a lot of hours, night and day, to make sure the park was maintained. His presence will definitely be missed by board members, as well as many citizens who use the park.
Lovelace, now 48, was first appointed by magistrate Norman Dale Asberry and served as a county appointed member. Later, he became a Board of Education appointee and was recommended by school board chairman Ned Davis.
Lovelace took over as chairman following Steve Peddi-

School board sets tax rates

The school district tax rate for the 2012-13 fiscal year will remain unchanged following action taken last Thursday, August 30 during a combined public hearing and special meeting of the Clinton County Board of Education.
Any time in which estimated revenues from the tax rate increases from the previous year, a public hearing on the proposed rates is required.
In the notice of the hearing published recently, it noted, “The General Fund tax levied in fiscal year 2011-12 was 38.4 cents on real property and 38.4 cents on personal property and produced revenue of $1,638,565. The proposed General Fund tax rate of 38.4 cents on real property and 38.4 cents on personal property is expected to produce $1,643,547. Of this amount, $191,414 is from new personal property. The compensating rate for 2013 is 37.9 cents on real property and 37.9 cents on personal property and is expected to produce $1,622,146.51.
The general area to which revenue of $4,982 above 2012 revenue is to be allotted as follows: $4,982 is to transportation.
During the public hearing/meeting, only one citizen was on hand but no comments regarding the proposed rates were made.
The board, at its regular meeting earlier in the month, had proposed keeping the same base rate

County tax rates unchanged

Taxpayers of Clinton County will see their rate of taxes remain unchanged from the past fiscal year, as Clinton Fiscal Court, during a call session last Friday morning, August 31, opted to keep the rates unchanged. All magistrates were present for the brief meeting.
The rates were presented at 6.0 per $100 assessed value on real property; 6.2 on personal property and 7.8 on motor vehicle and watercraft for the 2012-13 year, all the same as the 2011-12 year. Magistrate Mickey Riddle made the motion to approve the rates, which passed by unanimous vote.
Although 3rd District Magistrate Larry Hatfield voted in favor of setting the rates as the previous year, following the vote he told his fellow squires that the court was going to have to raise taxes little by little, apparently via the four percent allowed increase the county could have opted for, citing the fact the county was in need of extra revenues.
Several taxing districts had also submitted their budgets to the court.
By law, the county doesn’t have any say in what rates each individual taxing districts set their rates, and only voted to accept the rates by formality as they had been presented.
The following rates per taxing district was presented and on record as being accepted by the court:
* Soil Conservation: 1.5 cents per $100 assessed value across the board.
* Extension Service: 4.6 cents for real property; 8.35 for personal; and 2.0 for motor vehicle and watercraft.
* Public Library: 3.0 on real property and 4.0 on personal.
* Health Department: 3.5 across the board on real, personal and motor vehicle and watercraft.
* School District: 38.4 cents per $100 assessed value on both real and personal property; .53 cents on motor vehicle and watercraft and three percent on utilities.
The court also held second and final reading on two budget

Student creativity called upon for state's 2012 Conservation Writing and Art Contests

With a new school year now underway, the search for Kentucky's finest youth writers and artists also begins. Students in grades 1-12 are encouraged to submit creative writing and artistic entries for the annual Conservation Writing and Art Contests sponsored by Kentucky Farm Bureau and the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts.

This year's competition, featuring a Writing Contest for grades 6-12 and the Jim Claypool Conservation Art Contest for grades 1-5, is themed "Kentucky's Forests: Branching Out." While creativity is a key component to the contests, students will be challenged to think about the environment around them and the efforts they can take to help preserve it. Participants are tasked to share their ideas through short essays and artwork, persuading their readers and viewers to take action toward wildlife conservation efforts.

A better understanding of the benefits that forest conservation brings to Kentucky's landscape is something that can be enjoyed for generations to come, but this competition also rewards its participants for the time and effort required to create their entries. County-level winners receive a $25 award, regional winners get $50 and the state winners collect $250 for first place, $150 for second place and $50 for third place.

In last year's competition (focusing on Kentucky's wildlife), students from 89 different counties submitted a total of 17,189 writing entries while creating an additional 42,924 art entries from 98 counties.

Entries for the 2012 competition must be received at the student's local conservation district office by December 1. To learn more about the contests and download resource materials – including a teacher's guide, contest entry form and report forms – visit kyfb.com/federation or conservation.ky.gov.

Safe handling of melons

Source: Jackie Walters, UK extension specialist

The recent salmonella outbreak traced to cantaloupes grown in Indiana has many Kentuckians concerned about consuming melons, but it doesn't necessarily mean that you have to abstain from eating this fresh summer delicacy. When properly handled, melons can be a safe, satisfying treat.

Here are some tips on how to safely handle melons:

- Buy melons from a local, reputable source. The shorter the distance food has to travel from farm to table, the less of a chance that microorganisms have grown on the produce. Microorganisms need time to multiply.
- Wash your hands before and after handling fresh produce.
- Before consuming, rinse melons with clean, running water and use a clean vegetable brush to scrub away debris on the skin, even if they have been prewashed. Washing the skin of fresh produce is important even if you are going to only eat the inside of the fruit as bacteria on the skin can be transferred to the flesh of the fruit when it is sliced.
- Do not use dishwashing or hand soap to wash produce. These items have not been tested for use on food.
- Cut melons using clean, sanitized knives and cutting boards.
- Once sliced, melons must be stored below 40 degrees Fahrenheit and consumed within a few days.
- Avoid consuming any melons if the store, restaurant or market does not know where they were grown. You may also want to avoid purchasing pre-sliced melons as you do not know whether proper safety precautions were taken in their processing.

For more information on food safety, contact your Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

the entire school district together to the principals of each school. She said everybody was in favor of the idea.

“We all saw that as a cultural activity we could do it to unite our staff and students and to bring pride to our schools,” Bernard said. “If we have schools that have a warm, caring climate, then it’s going to support the instruction that is going on in that school. Students will love their school and they will want to come to their school. It will help attendance.”

Bernard said it was great that she received so much cooperation from all the principals in order to make this assembly hap-pen.

“It was an undertaking for the staff and principals to bring those students to that one loca-tion,” Bernard said. “I think the message that was there ... the ex-perience that they had made it all worthwhile.”

The assembly was set up for mainly to bring the students to-gether to work as one unit.

“Too many times we focus too much on the negative issues and don’t celebrate the facts, the Lord has blessed each of us to live in a beautiful community with caring and compassionate people who are willing to go the extra mile for the betterment of each indi-vidual and group,” Messer said. “We have bright and intelligent kids in our schools to work with each day, who are capable of meeting or exceeding the abili-ties of students anywhere as long as we continue to provide them with the instruction, nurturing, and guidance to raise their ex-pectation levels to new heights.”

Another reason to assem-ble was to practice evacuating the students quickly in case of an emergency, which is a drill the school system has to perform anyway.

“We can even use this as an evacuation drill,” Bernard said. “How quickly can we evacu-ate our schools and get them to one school? We had never gotten to practice this drill before. We used employees of the district to drive the busses. All of the maintenance crew keeps their bus licenses so they can, in an emergency situation, go over and help drive busses to evacuate schools.”

The phrase “WE ARE BULL-DOGS, according to Bernard, came from Coach Messer and he uses the phrase to “pump up” his basketball team. Now the phrase is used district-wide.

“He took the ball and ran with it,” Bernard said. “He and Mike Beard made the agenda. We even had a dry run-through the day before. We started it, but once he got a hold of it, it was kind of like it was his baby.”

Bernard’s main focus of this assembly is to get the parents in-volved in the school system.

“We want our parents and our community to love our schools,” Bernard said. “We want them to be a member of our schools. We want to have an open door policy and that way we gain their sup-port. Through community and parent support, we can accom-plish great things together.”

Bernard said she encourages parents to take on this slogan for themselves.

“Put it on your shirts ... put it on your signs. Wear it and be proud,” Bernard said. “With me being new, this was one of the initiatives that I wanted to do. I have a lot of pride in this school system. I know we have a fabu-lous staff and a hard working staff. We’ve got wonderful kids ... kids who can compete with anybody in the state, academi-cally and athletically. I just want them to swell up with pride and go out there and give it their best.”

Bernard said she would love for people to come out and sup-port each team this year as they take the fields, courts and cours-es.

“Wear their colors and show their support,” Bernard said. “This was a team effort by the entire staff and I want to thank all the staff for making this pos-sible,” Bernard said. “I would also like to thank Principal Shel-don Harlan for hosting the event. He deserves the credit for this event.”

Messer said the event was an overwhelming experience. He hopes students and staff left the assembly with a sense of pride for Clinton County.

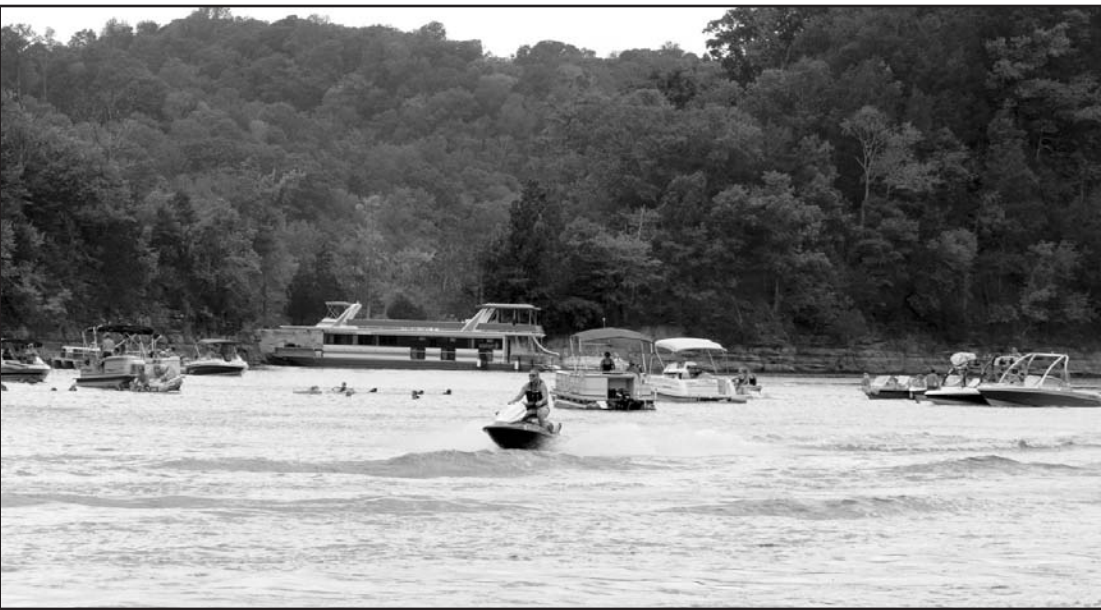

“The assembly as a whole was extremely important in recogniz-ing and celebrating as a school community, WE ARE BULL-DOGS, and it doesn’t matter what role within the school we have, it is important to under-stand each of our interactions Boys’ basketball Head Coach Todd Messer led the assembly Tuesday at the high school. Every student in the Clinton County School District was on hand to promote pride, school spirit and unity.

Superintendent Charlotte Bernard spoke for a moment to the students in the Clinton County School District. All students were on hand Tuesday for an assembly at the high school.

Slim crowd ...

Boating traffic was down on both Dale Hollow Lake and Lake Cumberland during Labor Day weekend, traditionally the final holiday weekend of the 2012 tourism season. While fuel prices likely played a large role in the decreased numbers of boaters, the weather conditions that produced scattered showers, clouds and wind - all remnants from Hurricane Isaac, likely was the biggest factor in the visitation numbers being lower than normal for the weekend. The photo above was made on Sunday afternoon on Dale Hollow Lake, near Shear Pin pass just east of Wolf River Marina.

shape our school culture daily,” Messer said. “I hope everyone who attended the event left the assembly without a shred of doubt that we are all in this to-gether and it’s the duty of each one of us who make up the school community to strive for excellence, to persevere through challenges, and continue to cele-brate the accomplishments of all our students, while challenging each to represent our school and community with pride, dignity, and honor.”

At the conclusion of the as-sembly, each student in the dis-trict, as well as the faculty and staff, were given a bracelet with the words “WE ARE BULL-DOGS” written on the side.

“Hopefully, the wristbands each participant received will serve as a reminder each day, that each of us are integral parts of the school community. Thus, we have a duty to demonstrate the pride, heart, and determina-tion to work diligently towards bettering school and community, to embrace the goal of improving themselves through continued learning, and to carry the banner daily, I am proud to be from Clin-ton County and I am a BULL-DOG,” Messer said.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

An elderly man died on Tuesday, August 21, when the lawn tractor he was operating went over a bluff.

John Maggard, 70, a resident of Hickory Point, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Deputy Coroner's Anthony Vaughn and Gordon Hicks.

According to the Wayne County Coroner's Office, Maggard was operating his lawn tractor when he lost control of the machine and fell from a bluff on the edge of his property overlooking the lake.

The accident occurred at approximately 6:50 p.m. The exact cause of the accident is unclear and is still under investigation.

Other agencies involved were the Wayne County EMS and Wayne County Rescue Squad.

Property tax rates for the Wayne County School District will remain the same for 2012-13. The board opted to follow Superintendent John Dalton's recommendation to keep tax rates the same as last year, during a meeting held Monday, August 20.

The tax rate for real and personal property was set at 38.9 cents per hundred dollars of assessed value. The motor vehicle tax rate was set at 52.8 cents per hundred dollars of assessed value and the utility tax was set at three percent.

Monticello City Council met in special session on Thursday, August 23 and took care of some routine business regarding the wastewater treatment plant project.

Council members approved the second reading of the bond ordinance, authorizing approximately $4.9 million in bonds for the project. They also approved a resolution for interim financing for the project until the bond sale is completed.

The council approved the bid on the bonds by USDA. The bid came in at 2.5 percent for 40 years.

Following the special meeting, a pre-construction meeting was held with Smith Contracting, which was awarded the bid for the project. Officials said the state date for the project was September 4.

Wayne County lost a well-known businessman and community leader on Monday, August 20, with the death of Paul Dunnington. Dunnington was 74.

He most recently served as a member of the Wayne County Board of Education, representing Division Three. Dunnington had recently resigned that position because of illness.

"Wayne County Schools will greatly miss Mr. Paul Dunnington as a board member. Mr. Dunnington believed strongly in serving and he applied that part of his life to serving the students and staff at Wayne County Schools," said Wayne Superintendent John Dalton. "He was always very interested in making sure students had opportunities to succeed and was always thinking to the future as to how we can improve. No matter if it was a building project or rigorous instructional program work, he always encouraged planning and creativity to provide the best for Wayne County students. He cared deeply about our students and he is already greatly missed. We thank him for his service to the precious students of Wayne County Schools."

Dunnington was very interested in the progress of this community. He was a past president of the Monticello-Wayne County Industrial Foundation and was a charter member of the Southeast Kentucky Economic Development Corporation. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, served 41 years with the Monticello Kiwanis Club and was involved with the local Habitat for Humanity.

Dunnington was very involved with establishing the Wayne County Museum and served on the museum committee for five years. He was a board member for the Empowerment Zone for 16 years and helped to establish the first Oxford House in Wayne County.

"Wayne County is going to miss Paul Dunnington...I wish we had more like him," said Wayne County Judge-Executive Greg Rankin. "He was very community minded, always working to do something good for somebody. He was just a great guy."

He was a member of the First Baptist Church, where he served as a deacon for more than 30 years and sang in the choir for over 40 years. He represented First Baptist Church as a member of the Executive Board of the Wayne County Association of Southern Baptists. Dunnington was a member of the Monticello Camp of Gideons International where he was active in the jail ministry. He worked with the Kentucky Baptist Disaster Relief and traveled abroad on 12 mission trips to Russia, Poland, Brazil, Switzerland, Nicaragua and Haiti.

Dunnington is survived by his wife, Katherine Bryant Dunnington, two daughters, Mischa Brainard and Stephanie Montrose, and four grandchildren.

Services were held Wednesday, August 22 at First Baptist Church.

CUMBERLAND CO. NEWS Burkesville

Anonymous surveys can say a lot. The parents, students, and staff of Cumberland County Middle School were given the opportunity to answer questions about their school. The overall results and comments were overwhelmingly positive. Two concerns were mentioned multiple times: the issue of bullying and the condition of the restrooms.

CCMS has gone through numerous renovations over the last school year. The last of these renovations and updates included the restrooms. The restrooms were the last to be completed right before the start of the 2012-13 school year.

Each bathroom received a new vanity, automatic faucets, automatic flushers, new hand dryers, and even new stall dividers. The completed bathrooms capped off the updates and now the building is in the best shape since it was built.

Bullying peaks at the middle school age for most children. Guidance counselor Dorothy Smith has developed a "Bully Box" for each classroom, along with a Bully Farm.

Students can identify bullying of any type, even if they've only witnessed someone else being bullied. That report goes in the bully box. Each report is investigated by administration and consequences are delivered when it is believed bullying has taken place.

"We believe every student deserves to feel safe at school and promise to do everything we can to stop bullying at CCMS."

TIMES JOURNAL Russell Springs

Christopher Allman, the man who has been arrested and indicted on murder charges in the death of Sarah Hart, has now also been indicted by a grand jury on a first degree rape charge, according to documents obtained from Russell Circuit Court a week ago Tuesday.

Previously, Allman, 28, had been indicted on murder, fetal homicide, kidnapping, robbery and tampering with physical evidence charges. Those indictments came back in late June.

He was also indicted Tuesday on being a persistent felony offender, second degree.

Commonwealth's Attorney Matthew Leveridge said the latest indictment relates back to evidence collected through the initial investigation by the Kentucky State Police and local authorities.

He said forensic findings at the Kentucky State Police lab were presented to the grand jury last week which resulted in the latest charge.

Leveridge has already said he will seek the death penalty in the case.

Hart, 31, was robbed and killed in Jamestown along US 127 on June 14 as she was returning to her vehicle following an early morning jog.

Officials said Hart was 10-11 weeks pregnant when she was strangled to death.

Kentucky State Police arrested Allman about 12 hours after Hart's death.

He remains lodged in the Russell County Detention Center under a $1 million cash bond.

A pre-trial hearing is set for October 23 in the case, according to Circuit Clerk Tony Kerr.

Following last week's move by the Russell County Hospital Board of Directors to bring in Central Baptist Hospital to manage the facility, so to did that bring a change to the hospital's chief executive officer.

Robert Ramey, a 17-year veteran of Central Baptist, has taken over as CEO and brings his many years of leadership to RCH.

"I've been excited to come down and be here the last few days," Ramey said. "The first week has gone very well. I've been very impressed with the staff that we have here and I think that we have a really strong, caring group here at the hospital and the community has been extremely welcoming as well."

Ramey, who most recently worked as administrator of the multimillion dollar Baptist-Physicians Surgery Center in Lexington, said he would continue to get out in the community the next few weeks and greet folks as he makes himself at home in the community.

When he was first approached by Central Baptist officials about the opportunity here last week, Ramey said he jumped at the chance.

"I was looking forward to it," he said. "It was a great opportunity and I think the hospital has a good reputation. I think the opportunity to move to Russell County was something that was intriguing to me."

Ramey had the chance late last week to get out in the community and look for a place to stay long term and has continued to look around this week as he adjusts to life in Russell County.

"I've found some wonderful properties and some really nice communities as well," he said. "I've actually been staying here and went back to Lexington over the weekend just to close a few things out but overall I'm trying to move down here full-time as quickly as I can."

Ramey said he had visited Lake Cumberland on several occasions and had stayed in Russell County multiple times but that this new opportunity would allow him to fall into place and become a staple in this community.

"I'm actually from a small town," he said. "I grew up on a dairy farm in an agricultural community so this feels like I'm coming home more than sometimes being in a larger city."

He was born in Bourbon County in central Kentucky but grew up in a town in central New York with abundant rolling hills, lakes and farms.

"Being from Bourbon County, I still had some family in Kentucky and I just wanted to come back down after high school," he said. "I graduated from the University of Kentucky and never wanted to leave. I knew I was home in Kentucky."

Ramey graduated from UK in 1993 with a degree in health administration and then received his MBA in 1998 from UK as well.

"Early in college I realized I wanted to go into healthcare in some way," he said. "I wanted to be in a position where I could help impact people's lives in a positive way."

His career began in Pikeville in 1993 where he was coordinator for physician recruitment and physician services. He moved over to Central Baptist in 1995 where he focused on recruitment and network medical services, where he developed relationships with physicians in and around central Kentucky.

As administrator, Ramey oversaw the entire organization, which was a partnership between Central Baptist and some local surgeons in the Lexington area. He focused on things from an operational standpoint, financial standpoint and patient care standpoint where he made sure they were providing a high quality patient care.

Ramey, a first time hospital CEO, said the partnership between RCH and Central Baptist will allow the hospital to expand on the services already offered.

"I think my experiences and what I've done before working with physician recruitment and physician relations as well as running the business at the surgery center has prepared me for this type of position," he said. "I saw it as a great opportunity to come down here."

Ramey said he has been extremely impressed with the hospital's board of directors, which includes Chairman Chris McQueary, Mark Antle, Charles Blankenship, Sheldon Stephens and Kathy Hammond, and their progressive foresight and dedication to the services at the hospital at a time when the healthcare industry is rapidly changing.

"I've also been very impressed with the staff here at the hospital," he said. "Everybody is dedicated to improving the health of the community and one of the things I've noticed is that the needs of the patient is really what drives the decisions and that mirrors the philosophy of Baptist and Central Baptist so I think it is just a perfect fit with this partnership."

With a $21 million USD loan toward expanding the hospital already located, Ramey said he and his Central Baptist colleagues were excited about breaking ground on that project.

"I think the USDA loan that was secured by the board was a testament to their hard work and to the determination to the community in enhancing the healthcare services that will be available to the community," he said. "I'm looking forward to leading those efforts."

At Central Baptist we've got a large construction project going on so I've had those experiences and understand what it takes in this type of construction project...we're looking forward to making this a reality."

LIVINGSTON ENTERPRISE Livingston, TN

An Overton County woman is charged with TennCare fraud for selling prescription drugs that were paid for by TennCare near a local high school.

Natalie N. Chaffin, 27, of Livingston, was arrested after a joint investigation between the Office of Inspector General (OIG) and the Overton County Sheriff's Office.

Chaffin has been charged with TennCare fraud and delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance within 1,000 feet of public school property in Livingston. She's accused of obtaining the pain killer Oxycodone, using TennCare benefits to pay for the prescription and later selling a portion of her drugs near the school.

"This case is particularly egregious since the drugs were sold near a public school attended by children from the community," Inspector General Deborah Franklin said. "Local police are clearly committed to eliminating prescription drug abuse and the Office of the Inspector General is collaborating closely with them to stop people who insist on supporting this life-style with the TennCare program."

A Putnam County woman has also been charged in Overton County with TennCare fraud, for selling prescription drugs paid for by TennCare.

The Office of Inspector General and Overton County Sheriff's Office announced the arrest of Pamela M. Johnson, 48, of Cookeville. She is charged with TennCare fraud and two counts of delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance.

Johnson is accused of obtaining the pain killer Oxycodone with TennCare benefits, and then selling a portion of the drugs.

TennCare fraud is a Class E felony carrying a sentence of up to two years in prison, while the delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance is a Class C felony, carrying a possible sentence of up to six years.

Volley Dawgs drop home match against Wayne Co.

Sarah Guffey put the ball over the net Thursday during Clinton County’s match against Wayne County at Lindle Castle Gymnasium. The Volley Dawgs lost the match and moved to 7-11 on the season.

Juliann Mullins scored on a kill during the first game against Wayne County on Thursday, August 30, 2012. The Lady Volley Dawgs had the Cardinals against the ropes with a 9-0 run, but ended up losing the game, 25-23.

Senior Shelby Brown went up for a kill during Clinton County’s game against Wayne County Thursday at Lindle Castle Gymnasium. The Volley Dawgs put together a 9-0 run in the first game, but the Cardinals came back and defeated Clinton County in two games, 25-23, and 25-10. Clinton County moves to 7-11 on the year.

Correction ...

A Volley Dawg player was incorrectly identified in a caption in last week’s edition. The caption should have read:
Senior Laura Groce tried to block a shot by a Monroe County player Thursday, but Monroe’s hard hitting outside hitters made it difficult for the Lady Dawgs to stop its offense. Clinton County lost the game and moved to 6-10 on the year.

Boys’ soccer team loses to Lincoln, girls pick up first win

Noah Cummings ran the ball down the field Tuesday against Lincoln County. The Bulldogs lost the contest by a final score of 10-0. The girls’ soccer team defeated McCreary Central on Thursday, 7-0, to pick up its first win of the season.

Travis Garmon tried to stop one of Lincoln County’s goals in the first half, but was just a split second behind as Lincoln County scored its first goal of the game. The Bulldogs, with the loss, move to 1-5 on the year.

Now it (usually) starts to feel more like fall
With the arrival - and passing - of the Labor Day holiday, things usually start to feel, and look, more like fall. Officially, we’re still in summer, at least until September 22, when the fall equinox arrives marking the change of the season at about 9:49 a.m. local time.
Still, September usually means cooler nights and noticeably shorter days, so things start to feel more like fall even before the official arrival of the season, thus “fall sports” tend to become more enjoyable with the cooler surroundings.
Our gridiron Dawgs are still looking for the first win of the season after suffering a 48-14 loss Friday night on Bulldog Field at the hands of Adair County, a 3A team .
The Dawgs will hit the road this Friday night, taking a trip to face yet another 3A team when they take on Casey County at Liberty in a contest set for an 8:00 p.m., local time, kickoff.
Both teams will be entering Friday night’s game looking for win No. 1 on the year, as Casey County is coming off of a similar loss to the one just suffered by Clinton County, with the Rebels losing this past Friday night to Sheldon Clark, 56-14.
Looking even further ahead on the schedule, the Dawgs get away from the 3A schools for a stretch in two weeks when they begin a four-week home stretch on September 14 hosting Caverna (1A), followed by Metcalfe County on September 21 (2A) and Glasgow (2A) on September 28, and Middletown Christian out of Ohio on October 5.

In other CCHS sports lineups for the next week, the Golf Dawgs and Lady Dawgs are at home Thursday, September 6, playing host to Monroe County, then the Lady Golf Dawgs compete on Saturday, September 8, at Paul Walker in Bowling Green for the Warren East Invitational. Both teams return home for matches on Monday and Tuesday, September 10 and 11 at Dale Hollow Lake State Resort Park, facing Wayne and Cumberland, then Monticello respectively.
The Volley Dawgs are on the road for their next two outings, traveling to Metcalfe County on Friday, September 7, then Russell County on Monday, September 11. Both matches set to begin at 5:30 p.m.
In soccer, the girls’ travel to Warren East on Thursday, September 6, followed with another road trip to Barren County on Friday, September 7, returning home to host Grayson County on Monday, September 10. All three matches have a 6:00 start time.
The boys’ soccer Dawgs host Glasgow on Thursday, September 6 (6:00), then head to Hart County on Saturday, September 8 (11:00 a.m.)
The Runnin’ Dawgs cross country team will head to the western part of the state this Saturday, when they compete in the Owensboro Invitational.

Louisville gets its 'breather'; Western rolls, heads to Tuscaloosa Louisville's win over Kentucky was so complete, UofL president James Ramsey, out of institutional diplomacy, should have instructed that the handsome Governor's Cup be kept in its crate Sunday. Taken back to the Howard Schnellenberger football house.

Or, Dr. Ramsey might have it encased and placed at the feet of John Unitas since it might be on campus awhile.

As impressive as the Cardinals' 32-14 win was Sunday, the spread reflects more the daylight between the two programs these days. Charlie Strong's show is moving up, Joker Phillips' program is - to be kind - standing still.

The Governor's Cup has become a half-measure that damages football in Kentucky more than heightens interest. It is a grand season launcher for the winner, a nightmare for the loser so awful that the best coach's show spin falls on deaf ears or no ears at all.

Chained to its bearish SEC schedule (not including Alabama, LSU and Texas A&M), Joker Phillips has not been well served by his director of athletics. Kentucky should have stayed with an approach embraced by West Virginia and Florida State. The Mountaineers and Seminoles put 69 points on the board last week, each. Whatever happens next, the winners are rolling. Marshall and Murray State went home with large checks.

Ironically, Louisville got the season opening breather it needed for Big Mo. But Wildcat football is left in regroup mode already, well south of hope, confidence, momentum, all with 70,000 seats to sell for Game Two.

Governor's Cup aftermath?

• At Louisville this week, Missouri State comes to town off a 51-9 loss at Kansas State. Charlie Strong's largest problem may be keeping media worship for Teddy Bridgewater at bay. Gushing praise into the kid's ears drawing comparisons to Michael Vick and other Glamour Leaguers.

• Meanwhile, in Lexington Joker Phillips goes back to a drawing board. But first he should get an apology from six-figure salaried Rick Minter. The latter should tell the former "I'm sorry for impersonating a defensive coordinator." Then the soon-to-be 58-year-old Minter ought have the brass to resign and look for a new line of work.

'TOPPER JUGGERNAUT?

Western Kentucky won a season opener for the first time since Jack Abramoff went to jail and Rafael Palmeiro should have, 2005. Just as important, while Louisville was slapping Kentucky around up I-65, the Hilltoppers were rolling up 49 points against Austin Peay. All good stuff for the 'Tops ... for the moment.

Willie Taggart's team must have celebrated for half-an-hour, before eyeballing the schedule with a blink or two. Next up: The team that pulverized Michigan last week, Alabama ... in Tuscaloosa.

Roll 'Toppers.

VANDY AND THE SCRIPT

Only surprise from South Carolina-Vanderbilt result last week was the margin, 17-13. Steve Spurrier's team was favored by 6.5. Coaches know the script, fans do and game officials know it too.

Savvy fans from Macon to Music City know the chances of Vandy beating an SEC big dog are as likely as truth-telling from a politician.

The door mat 'Dores are supposed to be happy with a good gate, play a Spurrier's team within four points, beat the spread, then shut up and move on.

Noble and admirable, Vandy coach James Franklin's passion. He rails about "changing the culture," stirs the hopes of fans and alumni, sells a few more tickets and attracts television a Saturday or two.

But a script is still a script in the SEC. Kentucky fans know the sting when Franklin and Commodore fans witness critical and close calls go, uh, the other way.

The Gamecocks led 17-13 in the fourth quarter, but Vandy was on the move. The crowd was up. Their 'Dores had a shot.

Vandy receiver Jordan Mathews beat defender D.J. Swearing down the right flank. Near the Carolina 40 Mathews reached for a pass from quarterback Jordan Rodgers that was straight into his bread basket. Would be a first down, maybe a touchdown.

One could almost hear Vandy fans, "Oh, baby! We've got a chance to beat the Ball Coach!"

They and a gazillion teevee viewers saw Mathews reach for the football, Swearing reached for Mathews' arm and whacked it down. The football skittered away. Interference. Clear call, right? Wrong.

Maybe the guy in stripes was in mid-blink, maybe his mind was on a postgame barbeque sandwich, or maybe its simply the SEC script.

Spurrier's team ran out the clock, the coaches shook hands and everybody went home. Kentucky fans know. We have seen UK coaches rage on the sidelines, plead for a fair shake, but knowing they (and we) know "the culture" is what it is.

If Vandy or UK hopes to take a bite out of an SEC big dog your team must do a lot more in the fourth quarter. Avoid close calls. Expect no divine deliverance.

POLITICS
SPORTS?

Mean ... nasty ... anything goes ...and the hell with fair play!

A sentence to sum up the political climate in America today. In sports too.

• NFL exhibition game last week a quarterback was chased down and buried under a pile of defenders. Getting up from the play one beast pressed a forearm hard into the quarterback's throat. No official saw it, but we (and our kids) did. Bounty hunting aside, NFL culture is: Intimidate, knock opponents out of the game.

Gamesmanship? No. Just cheap, savage and dumb. Guilty players should have to explain the video clip to fans 10-and-under.

• Major League baseball game in Pittsburgh. Base runner sprints for home, catcher blocks the plate ... a train-wreck collision happens. Batting helmets explode, bodies tumble in the dirt. The catcher is escorted off with a possible concussion. Three innings later, the player who bowled him over is hit by a pitch intentionally.

Why? Baseball culture dictates a pitcher must retaliate to "protect his catcher."

Gamesmanship? No. Silly, childish, stupid and dangerous. And hero-dazzled children are watching.

PARTING SHOT

LeBron James has a new pair of basketball shoes on the market, $300 a copy. Brings to mind a Charles Barkley remark.

"These are my new shoes. They're good shoes. They won't make you rich like me, they won't make you rebound like me, they definitely won't make you handsome like me. They'll only make you have shows like me. That's it."

And so it goes.

cord, who served in that position the first year of the park board's existence.

Lovelace notified park board members earlier this summer he would be stepping down because of his workload, including having to work some nights at this job and also at least half the nights of a month taking care of his parents and grandmother.

During an interview this past weekend, Lovelace said one of the most fulfilling things about the years he put in volunteering at the park was watching children in the community grow up, mostly from starting out playing Little League baseball and softball at the park.

He also said he derived pleasure in being able to serve both kids and adults in helping provide them with a place to play ball, walk, hold birthday parties, picnics and cook-outs for family gatherings. "I've seen so many people use the park for various things," he said.

Lovelace also said he had enjoyed working with some great people over the years, including board members such as the late Jim Dyer III and Paula Little, who is now the only remaining original board member, and Park Director Bobby Reneau, who he worked with on an almost day-to-day basis during peak usage times at the park.

The former board chairman said about the biggest challenge he had over the years, especially in the past few years, was being short-handed on help. But, he said, "anytime you have a volunteer organization, you're going to run into that situation at times." He also remembers non-board members, such as Little League parents, step up and volunteer to do jobs, such as working in the concession stand during games.

Lovelace also noted some of the major accomplishments he and the park board should be proud of includes seeing Little League baseball games played at night, now that the fields at the park are lit. The new building which houses better rest room facilities, a scoreboard area and meeting room, as well as covered bleachers were among the items mentioned.

Just as importantly, the front part of the park has been vastly improved, with the playground moved back from the roadway and new grills and benches being added, along with mulch placed on the playground area.

Another thing Lovelace was proud of about the park, which many wouldn't give a second thought, is the quality of food provided to park goers during ball games and other events. He said he had even heard of people from other counties that would come to the park and wait to eat when they got there. "They had heard about the grilled food," he noted.

During peak spring and early summer months, when Mountain View Park is most used by more people, Lovelace said he would put in an average of 20-25 hours a week. He said two of his children, the youngest now just 11, practically grew up at the park.

During his tenure, not only did Lovelace perform as board chairman, but also was a fixture at the park at about any given time, doing any job from working in the concession stand, directing traffic, cleaning up, making trips back and forth for supplies and once was Master of Ceremonies for a beauty pageant.

Because of the economic times and other reasons, Lovelace said the park board will be facing challenges in the years to come and said the approach of maintaining the park may have to be different than in years past. He noted Little League player numbers were down, concession sales were down and the U.S. 127 Sale proceeds have decreased in recent years. "Those proceeds just don't seem to be there anymore," he said. The board may have to use a unique and different approach with the concession stand, he added.

He noted that the input from the three governing entities that help fund the park didn't sustain the costs for a full fiscal year, but with the revenues from the yard sale and concessions, the park was able to be solvent.

One goal that wasn't accomplished during his 15 years on the board and 14 as chairman was that of obtaining a new, modern playground. He suggested possibly soliciting individual businesses and industries to donate one item per year to help make a better playground feasible.

Lovelace said any advice he would give to the new chairperson, as well as board members, would be to be creative in obtaining funding and never give up hope, no matter how challenging it may be, because, he said, "we always found a way to maintain the park and pursue a lot of projects even when we were unsure how we would pull it off." He continued, "I'm of the mind set that if you do the right thing for the right reason, you'll get a good outcome...that's the reason the park is as good as it is today."

Lovelace, a Clinton County native and 1982 graduate of CCHS, obtained a Bachelor's Degree and Master's Degree from Eastern Kentucky University in 1986 and 1989, respectively and has been employed with the Lake Cumberland Boys' Camp in Wayne County for the past 13 years.

He and his wife, Carolyn, have three children, Megan Lovelace-Thompson, Cory Lovelace and Rhiannon Lovelace.

In closing, Lovelace challenged all three supporting government entities, the judge/executive and fiscal court; mayor and city council; and school superintendent and board of education to continue to strive to always find funding for Mountain View Park, saying he felt it was the most single-used facility in the county.

of 38.4 cents each per $100 assessed value on both real and personal property. The tax rate on motor vehicle and watercraft also went unchanged at .53 cents, as well as the three percent tax on utilities.

A motion was made by board member Paula Key to approve the rates, seconded by Kevin Marcum and passed by unanimous vote.

A survey conducted by the Green River Cooperative revealed that of among 31 school districts surveyed in their area, over half--54.8 percent of the districts--had opted to take the four percent allowed increase while 19.4 percent opted for the compensating rate (six schools) and Clinton was among only five districts that kept its current rate.

The agenda for last week's meeting also had a discipline problem listed for a closed session. However, Superintendent Charlotte Bernard said that issue had been handled at the school level and no action on the issue was necessary by the board.

The next regular meeting of the Clinton County Board of Education is scheduled for next Monday, September 10 at 5 p.m. at the Central Office conference room and is open to the general public.

formed the board a few months ago he was going to do, after the U.S. 127 Yard Sale had passed.

Lovelace was also presented a plaque of appreciation by the board members on hand for the work and dedication he has put in over the past 15 years.

Also during the discussion, Ostertag presented the monthly treasurer's report, as well as a report on concession stand receipts per month over the past year.

Members that were on hand also discussed future ways to save and generate revenue, including possibly having each entity that uses fields to pay a share of lighting used and possibly renting out the Farmer's Market building to food vendors in the future.

Reneau also suggested that when the board had a meeting with enough members to constitute a quorum, they should consider appointing a "business committee" that would meet and take care of routine month-to-month business and report to the full board. In this situation, the full board wouldn't have to meet to vote on such items as paying bills, etc.

The next regular meeting of the Clinton County Rec/Park Board is scheduled for September 27 at 6 p.m. at Mountain View Park and is open to the public.

Prior to a special meeting of the court last Friday to consider tax rates and budget amendments, King delivered her letter to the judge/executive and other court members asking they consider the proposal.

The letter stated: "This letter will serve as a request to have the fiscal court meetings video taped and televised.

This request is to be placed on the agenda for the next fiscal court special/regular session.

Even though the fiscal court meetings are open and can be televised, I think it is important that the court vote on this matter.

I have spoken with school personnel to have the meetings aired on channel 16, and I've lined up sponsors so that it will cost the county nothing.

In traveling around our community people tell me this is something they really enjoy and would like to see. I know when this was last done we had a lot of positive feedback. They enjoyed watching the meetings and felt more informed.

I also believe it is good for young people to see how their government works, and for older people who find it difficult to attend the meetings to feel involved.

Your time and attention to this matter is greatly appreciated."

Some years ago, when King was serving as Clinton County Judge/Executive, court meetings were taped and aired on the local access channel a certain day and time.

King said she had talked with several people who were in favor of the video taping and airing of not only the fiscal court, but other public meetings as well.

It isn't known if the matter will be placed on the agenda for the next regular meeting of Clinton Fiscal Court. That meeting is currently slated for September 20 at 5 p.m.

amendments.

The first amendment included a $216,000 federal grant used toward a bridge replacement project in the Fifth Magisterial District. The other amendment included $297,182.58 in carry-over funds from the past 2011-12 fiscal year.

Both amendment readings passed by unanimous vote.

Magistrate Charlene King suggested that since there was a sizeable surplus in the road department fund, that maybe it should be used to purchase some upgraded equipment for that department.

Judge/Executive Lyle Huff noted that particular issue wasn't on the agenda for the special meeting but said it could be discussed at a future meeting.

In an unrelated item that wasn't on the agenda last week, Magistrate King also had presented Judge Huff and fellow magistrates with a letter requesting fiscal court meetings be video taped. A separate article on that issue appears elsewhere in this week's Clinton County News.

United States nicknamed Uncle Sam

September 7, 1813
The United States nickname of Uncle Sam is linked to Samuel Wilson, a meat packer from Troy, New York, who supplied barrels of beef to the United Sates Army during the War of 1812. Wilson stamped the barrels with “U. S.” for United States, but soldiers began referring to the group as “Uncle Sam’s.” The local newspaper picked up on the story and Uncle Sam eventually gained widespread acceptance as the nickname for the U. S. federal government.
In September 1961, the U. S. Congress recognized Samuel Wilson as “the progenitor of America’s national symbol of Uncle Sam.” Wilson died at age 88 in 1854, and was buried next to his wife Betsey Mann in the Oakwood Cemetery in Troy, New York, the town that calls itself “The Home of Uncle Sam.”

President Bush learns of attack on World Trade Center

September 11, 2001
On the morning of September 11, 2001, President George W. Bush is en route to a visit with school children in Florida when he receives word that a passenger jet had just crashed into one of the World Trade Center towers in New York City. Within an hour of this first report, Bush was reading along with children in a classroom when he was informed that a second airliner had crashed into the second tower. Earlier that morning, Bush had received a scheduled security briefing and learned that there was a heightened but non-specific threat of a terrorist attack that day. Warned but undeterred, he continued with a pre-arranged trip to visit Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, to promote a new education bill. On the way from his hotel to the school, aides passed word to the president’s car in the motorcade that a passenger jet had crashed into the North Tower of the World Trade Center at 8:46 a.m. EST. Bush initially thought that the crash was the result of a terrible accident or pilot error. Bush arrived at the school shortly after the initial report and was waiting in an empty classroom at Booker Elementary with his Secret Service detail when the earliest news footage of the first plane crashing into the tower played on the school’s television screens. Just moments before the second plane hit, Bush was whisked into the classroom where he proceeded to meet with a group of first graders.
Video cameras were filming Bush’s school visit when White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card slipped into the room at 9:06 a.m. and whispered in the president’s ear that the World Trade Center had been hit by a second airplane and that the nation was under attack by an unknown entity. Bush appeared momentarily stricken, yet maintained his composure and continued to listen to the children read aloud for an additional eight to nine minutes. Bush explained in a White House press conference a week later that his reaction that fateful morning was one of slowly comprehending shock.
While still on the school grounds, President Bush made several live announcements that day regarding the unfolding tragedy. Secret Service agents then rushed the president to Air Force One, which was waiting on the tarmac at Sarasota’s airport. On his way to the airport, the president heard about the third attack on the Pentagon in Washington.
Once aboard Air Force One, the plane’s pilot flew in circles at cruising altitude while President Bush and Vice President Chaney discussed via phone where the president would be safest. The presidential plane stopped briefly at an air base in Louisiana before proceeding to Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska. The president returned to Washington by 6:42 p.m. the night of the attacks.

Clinton jobless rate jumps significantly in July

Clinton County’s unemployment rate took a dramatic increase in July as compared to the previous month of June, climbing back into the double-digit ranks after having spent several months below the 10 percent rate.

The local jobless rate in July was listed at 10.3 percent, compared with the 8.7 percent rate for June, 2012, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

The July 2012 rate was also higher than the rate for Clinton County reported a year earlier, in July 2011, when the local jobless rate was reported to be 9.3 percent. In Clinton County, there are 4,948 civilian adults in the labor force, meaning that in July, 2012, there were 4,436 who were working, leaving 512 unemployed.

Other area counties within the 10 county Lake Cumberland Area Development District, and the respective unemployment rate for each in July, 2012, were: Cumberland (345), Rullseel (8.2), Adair (8.1), Pulaski (9.4) and Wayne (12.6).

Unemployment rates fell in 97 Kentucky counties between July 2011 and July 2012, while 18 county rates increased and five stayed the same.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 5.9 percent. It was followed by Fayette and Franklin counties, 6.6 percent each; Oldham and Union counties, 6.7 percent each; Scott and Shelby counties, 6.8 percent each; Hancock County, 6.9 percent; and Daviess, Jessamine, Madison and Owen counties, 7.1 percent each.

Magoffin County recorded the state’s highest unemployment rate — 16.7 percent. It was followed by Futon County, 15.4 percent; Harlan County, 14.6 percent; Jackson County, 14.4 percent; Leslie County, 14.3 percent; Bell County, 13.9 percent; Wolfe County, 13.7 percent; McCreary County, 13.6 percent; Letcher County, 13.5 percent; and Knott County, 13.3 percent. Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working. Civilian labor force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work. They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks. The statistics in this news release are not seasonally adjusted to allow for comparisons between United States, state and county figures. Former Monroe sheriff murdered at his home

(The following was reprinted from the August 30 Tompkinsville News.)

Herbert “Sprocket” Proffitt, 82, of Tompkinsville, was pronounced dead at Monroe County Medical Center at 4:20 p.m. on Tuesday, August 28. Proffitt was shot at his own home, at approximately 3:15 p.m., on Rush Lane, just off Celina Road near Tompkinsville. Proffitt, who had been in law enforcement for over 50 years, had previously served as Monroe County Sheriff and Chief of Police for the City of Tompkinsville, and then later as a deputy sheriff for many years.

Charles Hammer, 81, Hestand-Chestnut Grove Rd., Tompkinsville, was arrested just after 11 p.m. on Tuesday night and charged with Proffitt’s murder. He was lodged in the Monroe County Jail.

According to Sheriff Roger Barlow, a 9-1-1 call was received just after 3 p.m. reporting the shooting and local law enforcement officers responded to the scene issuing a BOLO (be on the lookout) for a white SUV driven by an older white male thought to be Hammer.

Several Kentucky State Police Troopers and Detectives responded to the scene while sheriff’s deputies traveled to Hammer’s house where they took him into custody without incident after locating him standing in his front yard.
